

You Negotiated Them You Ratified Them Now It's Time to Fund Them

The state budget is being finalized now. Without your action, our contracts won't be funded - and we risk losing the pay increases we fought so hard for.

What's at Stake

The legislature is considering budget proposals that could mean lower wages and higher health care costs for public employees - even after we've already ratified our contracts.

State workers like you keep Washington running. We've faced rising costs, increasing workloads, and over 20% loss in purchasing power over the past two decades. The funding we've earned must be part of the final state budget.

Take Action Using the QR Code

Use the QR code to quickly:

- Find out who your state senator and representatives are
- Send them an email or give them a call
- Use the WPEA script to deliver a powerful message
- Share the action with your coworkers, friends, and family

Who We Are

WPEA represents nearly 6,000 public employees at 14 community colleges and 9 state agencies - including frontline workers in education, public safety, food inspection, and more.

We are essential, and we deserve a funded contract.

Find your legislators and send your message today. www.wpea.org/contractfunding

Act before April 19

This is our moment to protect what we've won and stand up for public services.